Integra helps Tony fly

Tony's learning disability made it hard for him to make himself understood or to control his behaviour. He was disruptive, frustrated and a prisoner inside himself. Others shunned, ridiculed and bullied him. He once had his face smashed.

When Tony came to Integra his life took off. His therapist, Paul, helped him learn self-control and how to get along with others. Group and individual counseling helped him learn to cope better. At Integra's Camp Towhee, he finally learned to trust others.

Tony's mother said, "Without Integra, Tony would have hurt someone or been seriously hurt."

Tony was lucky. He and his family got help in time because Integra has been improving the lives of children and youth with learning disabilities since 1967.

Learning disabilities are life-long childhood conditions, second only to asthma in frequency. Tragically misunderstood, learning disabilities affect the way the brain processes information. Though they have average to above intelligence, people with learning disabilities have problems with reading, writing and speaking, as well as memory, attention and relationships.

The results can be devastating. Without treatment, these kids commit crimes, drop out of school, have substance problems and feel suicidal. They suffer from crippling anxiety, depression, behaviour problems, stigma and bullying.

Integra offers specialized counseling for kids and families, a residential summer camp, public education, advocacy and research.
